V. Reasoned statement under Article 35(2) with regard to novelty, inventive step or industrial applicability; citations and explanations supporting such statement1. Statement

Novelty (N)	Claims	1 - 9	YES
	Claims		NO
Inventive step (IS)	Claims	1 - 9	YES
	Claims		NO
Industrial applicability (IA)	Claims	1 - 9	YES
	Claims		NO

2. Citations and explanations1. Reference is made to the following documents:

D1: FR-A-2 282 999

D2: DE-A-195 32 685.

- 2.1 D1, which is considered the closest prior art, discloses (cf. page 4, line 4; Claim 4; and Figure 4) a floor carpet laying system with a carpet (16) forming the useful surface with its nap side, a loopless material bonded to the floor surface (page 4, lines 20, 21: "matière textile" or "tapis"), and an anchorage means (Figure 4) which has interlocking elements (12) which project on both sides and interlock on one side with the rear side (15) of the carpet (16) remote from the nap side and formed from a loopless material and on the other side interlock with the material (page 4, line 4). Provided as the anchorage means is an adhesive closure element (Figure 4) whose interlocking elements (12) take the form of stalk-like parts (12). The subject matter of Claim 1 differs from this prior art in that the adhesive closure element (Figure 4) is a micro-adhesive closure element, the stalk-like parts (11) have thickened portions at their ends, and the interlocking elements (12) on both sides of the adhesive closure element (Figure 4) have different shapes and/or dimensions and/or spacings from one another.

The features in the preamble whereby the material secured to the floor surface and the material forming the rear side (15) of the carpet (16) is a loopless material and the material secured to the floor surface is bonded thereto, are considered to be implicitly disclosed.

Therefore the subject matter of Claim 1 is novel (PCT Article 33(2)).

- 2.2 Although a micro-adhesive closure element with terminal thickened stalk-like parts has already been used for interlocking with a loopless material in a floor carpet laying system - cf. D2, in particular column 2, line 55 - the prior art in no way suggests forming the interlocking elements (12) on both sides of the adhesive closure element with different shapes and/or dimensions and/or spacings from one another, for example, in order to achieve different adhesion on the one hand between the anchorage means and the material bonded to the floor surface and on the other between the anchorage means and the carpet.

Therefore the floor carpet laying system of Claim 1 involves an inventive step (PCT Article 33(3)).

3. Claims 2 to 9 are dependent on Claim 1 and so likewise meet the PCT novelty and inventive step requirements.
